Legion poppy campaign raises funds for veterans

By TERRY PUGH
tpugh@ccgazette.ca

Denis and Rachelle Poirier of Duck Lake put a lot of kilometers on their vehicle this time of year.

Eighty-three-year-old Denis and 80-year-old Rachelle, a happily-married couple who often finish each other's sentences, are long-time leaders of the Royal Canadian Legion's Duck Lake branch. They and a few other dedicated volunteers from the only operating Legion branch in the Sask Valley area organize the distribution and collection of Remembrance Day Poppies in several communities including Martensville, Warman, Osler, Hague, Rosthern, Duck Lake, Beardy's & Okemasis and Macdowall.

"We've distributed 25,000 poppies so far," explained Denis Poirier in an interview October 26, four days after the Legion officially kicked off the annual campaign. "That's slightly up from last year. There are some new businesses, including a grocery store in Warman that took six boxes - that's about 600 poppies."

Poirier said every year for the past decade, the number of poppies that Duck Lake Legion branch members distribute rises as more people realize the significance of the campaign and what it stands for.

"Some people who aren't familiar with what the poppy stands for may have the wrong impression," said Poirier. "They may say, 'I don't want to wear a poppy because I don't believe in war.' Well, I don't believe in war either, but that's not what the poppy represents. The poppy is a symbol of freedom and democracy and it's a sign of respect for those who fought and died for those ideals. They made the ultimate sacrifice so that this generation and future generations can live in peace and freedom."

Poirier said there's also a heightened awareness of the campaign as a result of the recent tragedy at CFB Wainwright in Alberta, where four soldiers lost their lives and dozens more were seriously injured as a result of a wildfire during a combat training exercise.

"People seem to want to express their support for our armed forces and veterans even in peace-time," he said, adding the local Legion branch greatly appreciates the assistance of the 574 Air Cadet Squadron in Martensville.

"The Cadets put in long hours selling poppies," said Poirier. "They bring in at least a thousand dollars every year, and in some years they've gone as high as $1400 in poppy sales."

Funds raised from the local poppy campaign are used to assist veterans and their families from the area.

"This year we are helping a veteran get a service dog," said Poirier. "The veteran suffers

Wendy Trask

My name is Wendy Trask, and I am seeking re-election as your Division 8 Councillor in the RM of Corman Park. With 20 years of municipal council experience, I bring a proven understanding of our rural community, the challenges facing our ratepayers, and the importance of strong, accountable representation.

Along with a career in the financial industry and extensive Governance training, I have completed the Municipal Leadership Development Program, with training in Municipal Economic Development, Land Use Planning, Strategic and Financial Planning, Public Relations and Communications, Human Resources and Municipal Leadership. Combined with two decades of hands-on experience, this education has strengthened my knowledge and ability to make informed decisions on behalf of our ratepayers.

I am running for re-election because I have the experience, qualifications and commitment to continue doing this job. I believe ratepayers deserve representation by a Councillor who lives in Division 8, is accessible, listens to their concerns, returns their calls and takes action to address the issues they bring forward.

Representation means more than attending council meetings; it means standing up for the people you represent. My priorities are clear: our ratepayers, our roads and our rural infrastructure. These are essential to the safety, daily lives and livelihoods of the people who live and work here.

If re-elected, I will bring the same dedication and experience to council that I have demonstrated over the past 20 years. I know the job, I know our community and I am ready to keep working for Division 8.

Seven impaired drivers in seven days as Project Red Ribbon begins

By CHIEF ROB DUTTCHEN
Corman Park Police Service

Corman Park Police Service (CPPS) members were busy on the highways and byways in and around the RM last week. Sadly, just as Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) Canada launched its annual Project Red Ribbon campaign, our officers removed seven impaired drivers from the road in seven days: four impaired by alcohol and three by drugs.

In the early morning of October 26, an officer stopped a vehicle travelling 107 km/h in the 80 km/h zone on Highway 16 near Dalmeny Road. The driver showed signs of impairment by a stimulant, and an oral fluid test was positive for cocaine. The driver received a three-day licence suspension, a three-day vehicle impound, and tickets for speeding, having open alcohol in the vehicle and possessing unstamped tobacco.

On the evening of October 27, CPPS stopped a vehicle that had just left a licensed establishment in Martensville. The driver showed signs of recent alcohol consumption and registered an "ALERT" on an approved screening device. He received a three-day suspension, and his vehicle was impounded for three days.

CPPS was back in Martensville the next evening, October 28, when a member noticed a vehicle on 1st Avenue North being driven in a way that suggested impairment. The driver showed signs of recent alcohol consumption and failed a roadside screening test. He was arrested for impaired operation of a motor vehicle and taken to the Martensville RCMP Detachment. There, he provided breath samples of 130 and 120 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood, well above the legal limit of 80. His vehicle was impounded for 30 days, and he was served a notice to appear in court. CPPS then drove him home and released him into the care of a sober adult.

At about 1 a.m. on October 30, an officer on Highway 219 saw a driver throw a burning item out of the vehicle window. During the traffic stop, the officer noted signs of recent alcohol consumption. A records check showed the driver was already suspended from driving, and a roadside test produced an "ALERT." He received a further 21-day suspension, a seven-day vehicle impound, and tickets for throwing burning material from a vehicle and for driving while suspended.

Just before noon that day, a partner agency asked CPPS to help with an evidence search using our Remotely Piloted Aircraft System (RPAS), commonly called a drone. Although nothing was located, the drone let officers search a large area quickly. It uses both a high-resolution camera and a thermal camera that detects heat, so the search was thorough and needed far fewer people than a search on foot.

That evening, just before 8 p.m., a CPPS member travelling through Saskatoon stopped a vehicle with no working taillights. The officer suspected the driver had been drinking, and a roadside test produced an "ALERT." The driver received a three-day licence suspension and a three-day vehicle impound. He and his wife were given a ride home.

Any hope that November would bring a fresh start was short-lived. At about 10 a.m. on November 1, police stopped a pickup near Clarence Avenue in Division 2. The driver showed signs of cannabis impairment, which an oral fluid test confirmed. As this was the driver's second offence, they received a 21-day licence suspension and a seven-day vehicle impound.

At about 3:30 p.m. that day, an officer stopped a vehicle on Highway 16 near the Borden Bridge for travelling more than 50 km/h over the speed limit. The driver showed signs of stimulant impairment, and an oral fluid test was positive for cocaine. This was the fourth time she had been caught driving under the influence of drugs. She received a 90-day licence suspension, a 14-day vehicle impound and a ticket for excessive speed.

Throughout Project Red Ribbon, CPPS will run additional patrols in both marked and unmarked vehicles to find and prevent impaired driving across the RM. As the holiday season approaches, please plan a sober ride, tie on a red ribbon, and call 911 if you see a driver you believe is impaired. Let's work together to finish 2026 safely.

Wildlife takes centre stage at art show

The best way to see wildlife up close while staying warm is to take in the Saskatchewan Wildlife Art Association's (SWAA) Impressions of Nature Art Show and Sale November 7 and 8.

That's where birds, in the form of paintings, photographs and carvings, are so lifelike they seem ready to fly right off the shelf or out of the frame.

The annual art exhibition, slated for the Saskatchewan Wildlife Federation (SWF) Hall at the intersection of Range Road 3050 and McOrmond Drive on Saskatoon's northeast edge, has a long tradition, according to Wayne Keating, a nature photographer and member of the SWAA.

"It was originally called 'Reflections of Nature' and was held every fall at the exhibition grounds in Saskatoon," said Keating. "But three years ago, the building rental cost put that out of reach for us, The Saskatoon Wildlife Federation stepped up and graciously offered us the use of their hall, and this will be the third year at that location.

Keating said the family-friendly show will feature 22 booths, with many of the one-of-a-kind exhibits offered for sale. The calibre of art on display is second to none, he added, noting carvings by well-known artists Cam Merkle and Reuben Unger are incredibly realistic.

The show runs November 7 and November 8. A concession booth is on site. Admission is by donation, with proceeds going to SWF Youth Programs.

from post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), and having a service dog will help the person in so many ways."

Poirier said the involvement of schools in organizing their own Remembrance Day services is also a positive sign. The Legion distributes poppies to schools throughout the region, including paper poppies that stick on clothing for the younger grades.

The Royal Canadian Legion headquarters made the decision this year to launch the campaign a little earlier than in the past.

"We got the memorandum at the end of July that the campaign would begin on the third Thursday of October," said Poirier. "Traditionally, it has always started the last Saturday of October. But, I guess that date always seemed to interfere with Halloween, so a change was made. It's apparently going to be a permanent thing going forward, which allows more time to raise funds through the campaign."

This year the poppy campaign focuses on the role of Women in the Armed Forces. Poirier said the Duck Lake Legion is also dedicating this year's campaign to the memory of Korean War veteran and long-time local Legion member Claude Petit, who passed away last summer.

"Claude was very well-known in our community and a very colourful character," said Poirier. "He was an inspiration, and a role model for young people. He was the Canadian Army Heavyweight Boxing champion, and he also won the British Army Heavyweight Boxing championship, when he was in the armed forces. He worked with young people to teach them to box, to give them something constructive and positive to do. So we are celebrating his memory at our annual Remembrance Day service at the Duck Lake Belladrome on Wednesday, November 11."

The service in Duck Lake will also feature a colour guard made up of veterans, service personnel and RCMP members, along with a bugler to perform The Last Post.

A large Remembrance Day service is also slated for November 11 at the Warman Home Centre Communiplex in Warman.

Sidewalk snow clearing bylaw now in effect

By TERRY PUGH
tpugh@ccgazette.ca

Time to get out the shovels.

The first snowfall of the season arrived, predictably, just before Halloween.

And while most of it melted shortly afterward, Mother Nature isn't likely to take on the snow-removal contract for the whole winter.

A portion of that responsibility will now fall to property owners in the City of Warman. City councillors voted at their October 13 meeting to approve a new Sidewalk Snow Clearing Bylaw.

The new bylaw, which is now in effect, applies only to sidewalks, not streets. The full bylaw can be viewed online at the city's website (warman.ca).

City of Warman public works crews will continue to clear arterial, collector and residential municipal roadways on a priority basis as usual, but they'll avoid pushing snow onto sidewalks during normal operations. In some circumstances, such as a particularly heavy and sustained snowstorm, city crews may place snow on the sidewalk; but in those cases the city will also be responsible for removing the snow later.

The passage of the sidewalk snow clearing bylaw came after several months of discussion at the council table and consultation with the public, including an online survey and face-to-face feedback gathered during the Warman Open for Business trade show in early October.

Prior to the passage of the new bylaw, Warman did not require homeowners and businesses to clear sidewalks in front of their property. However, most property owners did so anyway.

A city administration report to the October 13 council meeting noted that sidewalk safety and accessibility are important issues for residents. Nearly three-quarters of all respondents to the city's online survey said they used public sidewalks at least weekly, and over 80 per cent of those people experience winter sidewalk safety problems at least occasionally.

Under the new bylaw, property owners have up to 48 hours following the end of a snow event to remove snow and ice from the sidewalk adjacent to their property. Ice that cannot reasonably be removed must be treated with sand or salt to reduce slipping hazards until complete removal is possible.

The bylaw states the sidewalk must be cleared so that a walking path is reasonably free of snow and ice. Snow removed from the sidewalk cannot be deposited onto a city roadway.

Catch basins, curb ramps, and accessible crossings must also be kept reasonably clear where practical, according to the bylaw.

While penalties for failure to comply range from $100 for a second offence up to a maximum of $500 for a fourth and subsequent offence, the focus of bylaw enforcement officials during the upcoming winter season will be on education and encouraging property owners to abide by the new rules.

The bylaw does allow city officials to grant temporary exemptions in cases where the responsible person has a documented medical condition preventing compliance or other extenuating circumstances.

During discussion of the bylaw at the October 13 meeting, Councillor Marshall Seed asked about how the city would document cases where snow or ice had been deposited on a sidewalk by city street-clearing equipment, and how this would be communicated to the affected property owners. Administration officials stated the city would communicate directly with the residents using the most efficient method available.

Road naming honours former reeve

By KEVIN BERGER
Local Journalism Initiative
kberger@ccgazette.ca

Range Road 3060, which runs alongside the Bizhub Industrial Park and can be found just west of Highway 16, has been renamed "Harwood Road" in honour of Judy Harwood, the former reeve of the RM of Corman Park.

The unveiling of a sign bearing the name "Harwood Road" took place on Friday, October 30, at the junction between the former Range Road 3060 and Yellowhead Road.

Several representatives of the RM of Corman Park, as well as Judy herself and her family, were in attendance at the unveiling.

"I am so humbled by the recognition. This road and name will be here long after I am not," Judy said. "In the future, some of my great-grandchildren can point at the sign and say, 'I didn't meet (great-grandmother) but I do know about her, and here is her name.' Thank you so much."

As noted in a press release from the RM, the road re-naming stands as a permanent tribute to one of Corman Park's longest-serving and influential elected leaders.

Judy served as a councillor for Corman Park from 1994 to 2000 and later as reeve from 2012 to 2024.

"Among her many accomplishments, Harwood successfully advocated for preserving the unity of the municipality at a pivotal moment in its history, helping maintain a strong and effective local government," the release states.

As noted by Division 4 Councillor David Greenwood, who served as an emcee at the event, Judy not only served with the RM council and the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities (SARM) but also sat on boards for SaskPower, SaskTel, the Saskatchewan Transportation Association, and numerous other groups.

"Judy's background in hotel and restaurant management has given her many diverse experiences, which she has used to better the lives of those around her," he said.

Greenwood added that Judy's service has been previously recognized with the Queen's Jubilee Medal for Outstanding Service in 2014 and the North Saskatoon Business Association's Lifetime Achievement Award.

She has also been named one of Saskatchewan's 10 most influential women by the Saskatchewan Business Magazine, he noted.

Greenwood said the land surrounding Harwood Road will be an artery for business growth in Corman Park as BizHub and other nearby industrial parks continue to expand.

"A day will come when the land around us will host businesses, and those businesses will literally employ thousands of people who will know that Harwood Road takes them to work and guides them to home," he said.

It should be noted that both Greenwood and Division 8 Councillor Wendy Trask were the main architects of the road re-naming project.

Greenwood said they had originally looked at re-naming another road near Brandt Agriculture, but adjacent landowners had expressed concerns about adopting a new name.

As to why they pushed this project ahead, Greenwood said, "Judy's put a lot of effort into being a councillor and a reeve…We just felt it was prudent to recognize her."

Judy thanked Greenwood and Trask for their "dogged determination" in bringing this project to fruition, as well as her fellow councillors, past and present.

"We certainly had some interesting times. We didn't always agree, but we got the job done, and tried to make decisions based on what was best for Corman Park and our residents and our ratepayers," she said.

Finally, she also thanked her family for their unwavering support, particularly her partner Robert who looked after the farm as she was away at various events and conventions.

"Not once did I ever hear Robert complain about my commitment as reeve and councillor in Corman Park for 10 years," she said.

Disability benefits boosted

Thousands of Saskatchewan residents are receiving higher monthly benefits following improvements to the Saskatchewan Assured Income for Disability (SAID) program that took effect earlier this year.

"These improvements are putting more support directly into the hands of Saskatchewan residents while making the program simpler and more flexible," Social Services Minister Terry Jenson said. "We are ensuring clients can more easily access the benefits available to them and supporting ministry staff to spend more time working directly with clients."

Improvements to the SAID program simplified the benefit structure, expanded and restructured the Living Income Benefit and modernized the overly complex program. The changes are already making a difference for people across Saskatchewan.

Approximately 44 per cent of SAID clients, more than 7,700 people, saw an increase in their benefits. On average, clients are receiving $51 more per month, with some families and people living in rural areas seeing increases of up to $294 per month.

In September alone, this means SAID clients received nearly $400,000 more in benefits. Over the next year, the changes are expected to deliver approximately $4.7 million in additional support to Saskatchewan residents who rely on the program.

More than 18,000 Saskatchewan residents access the SAID program. The improvements were informed by client and stakeholder feedback, and no current clients saw a reduction in benefits as a result of the changes.

Transportation Master Plan: We Want to Hear from You

Martensville is growing and we're updating the Transportation Master Plan to help prepare for the future.

The plan will consider how people drive, walk, cycle, use mobility aids, and may use public or accessible transit in the future. It will also look at how goods and services move through the city.

Our goal is to support a safe, connected, and efficient transportation network that meets the community's needs now and in the future.

We want to hear from you. Round 1 of community engagement begins in November. Tell us what is working well, what could be improved, and how you would like to get around Martensville in the future.

Get Involved:

- Complete the online survey, open from November 3 to November 23. Available at Martensville.ca
- Visit us at Sip n' Shop: Thursday, November 12 from 4:00pm to 8:00pm at North Ridge Centennial Community Centre.

Getting Ready for Winter

As freezing temperatures approach, residents are encouraged to take a few simple preventative steps to protect their plumbing and irrigation systems from winter damage.

Winterization Checklist:

Sprinkler and Irrigation Systems
Ensure all water is removed from your irrigation lines before freezing temperatures arrive. Consider hiring a professional to blow out the system using compressed air to help prevent water from freezing, expanding, and damaging pipes and components.

Outside Water Taps and Garden Hoses
Disconnect all garden hoses from outdoor taps, drain them thoroughly, and store them indoors for the winter.

Indoor Shut-Off Valves
Locate the indoor shut-off valve for your outdoor taps, typically found in a basement, crawlspace, or utility room. Turn off the valve completely, then open the outside tap to allow any remaining water to drain.

Outdoor Faucet Insulation
Install an insulated cover over each outdoor faucet to provide additional protection against freezing temperatures and cold winds.

Martensville's waiver of rental of fees policy updated

By KEVIN BERGER
Local Journalism Initiative
kberger@ccgazette.ca

The City of Martensville's Waiver or Reduction of Rental Fees Policy has now been updated to provide more clarity about the intent of the policy – to provide non-profit organizations and community groups with assistance in holding one-time events or starting new programs, as opposed to ongoing or regular programming.

Martensville councillors voted to approve the updated Policy 120/25 during their October 20 council meeting.

Back in September, Director of Recreation and Planning Roxane Melnyk had asked councillors for their input on the policy, which had been approved by council during the fall of 2025.

Within the 2026 budget, a total of $36,000 had been allocated to support the waiver or reduction of rental fees for non-profits and community groups seeking to hold events but needing financial assistance to do so. The total value of fees waived or reduced ended up being a little over-budget, exceeding $39,500.

Looking ahead to 2027, Melnyk indicated there had been requests from local community groups for the waiver/reduction of rental fees for regular programming.

"While these programs provide valuable services to residents, they are generally expected to operate through sustainable funding models, including user fees, sponsorships, grants, and organizational fundraising," Melnyk noted.

She asked council for their input on these requests, noting that granting the applications could impact the city's recreation funding.

Council indicated the policy should support one-time events and activities that contribute to fundraising efforts for community assets, as well as the introduction of new programs that enhance the community's wellbeing.

The revised policy brought to the October 20 meeting now states outright that waivers will not be considered for programs, activities or services that form part of an organization's regular operations or have moved beyond their initial development phase.

It does contain one caveat: council may consider requests for waivers to hold ongoing programs where "exceptional circumstances" arise (unforeseen facility closures, emergency community needs, significant celebrations and other circumstances beyond an organization's control).

Also, programs that are offered free of charge will be given a higher priority in terms of requests being granted.

Royal Regina Rifles Regimental Colours return to Legislative Building

The Royal Regina Rifles' Regimental Colours were returned to their original home in the Saskatchewan Legislative Building. First displayed in the building's Rotunda, the Colours will once again be publicly displayed where they will serve as a visible reminder of Saskatchewan's military heritage and the generations of Saskatchewan soldiers who served their country.

"The return of the Royal Regina Rifles' Regimental Colours to the Legislative Building is a proud and meaningful homecoming," Premier Scott Moe said. "These Colours honour Saskatchewan soldiers who served with courage and made great sacrifices in defence of our freedoms. Presented as gifts from the people of Saskatchewan and first displayed in this building, they stand as a lasting tribute to those who served and a reminder of the debt we owe them."

The return was marked with a ceremony attended by Lieutenant Governor Bernadette McIntyre, Premier Scott Moe, Provincial Military Liaison Blaine McLeod, members of the Royal Regina Rifles and honoured guests.

Report from the Legislature

The third session of the thirtieth legislature was formally opened by Lieutenant Governor the Honourable Bernadette McIntyre with this year's Speech from the Throne. The speech outlined our government's priorities for building a strong and steady Saskatchewan, with a focus on economic growth, affordability, health care, community safety, agriculture, education and families.

Despite global uncertainty, Saskatchewan continues to attract significant investment. More than 60 major projects are valued at over $100 billion. Bell Canada's data centre expansion near Regina represents an investment exceeding $50 billion, creating opportunities for economic growth, job creation and the protection of Canadians' online data.

Our resource industries and growing export markets remain important drivers of Saskatchewan's economy. Key sectors include uranium, potash, oil, copper, zinc, lithium and rare earth elements. Provincial exports are nearing $50 billion, while GDP reached a record high of more than $85 billion in 2025. We will continue working to diversify international markets, expand trade and create jobs at home.

Alongside these economic opportunities, trade uncertainty and U.S. tariffs continue to affect key industries. Saskatchewan will receive $15.6 million over three years through the federal-provincial Workforce Tariff Response. This funding will support sectors such as manufacturing, construction, agriculture and mining. Nearly $125 million is also being invested in workforce development and career training, helping Saskatchewan people gain skills and build lasting careers.

As families navigate rising costs, affordability remains a priority. Saskatchewan offers some of the country's lowest housing and utility costs, along with significant personal income tax relief. A family of four pays no provincial income tax on its first $65,000 of income. Further personal income tax reductions are planned for the 2027 Budget, marking the third year of our four-year affordability plan.

Investing in education is another important part of building Saskatchewan's future. A historic $3.6 billion investment was announced in the previous budget. Across the province, 24 new schools and four major renovations are underway. New literacy screeners will help identify learning needs earlier, while the Specialized Support Model expands support for students with additional needs. A five-year childcare agreement will also support families and strengthen the long-term sustainability of Saskatchewan's childcare sector.

Keeping young people in Saskatchewan after graduation is equally important. Our government is enhancing the Graduate Retention Program, increasing the maximum benefit to $24,000. This program is intended to encourage graduates to live, work and raise their families here at home.

Access to timely health care remains a key commitment. Since 2022, more than 7,500 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals have joined Saskatchewan's health care system. More than 1,000 medical, specialist, nursing and allied health training seats have also been added. Through the Patients First Health Care Plan, 54 Nurse Practitioner Primary Care contracts will improve access for more than 43,000 patients. Our government remains on track to deliver 450,000 surgeries over four years, with more than 100,000 surgeries and procedures performed in 2025–26.

This work is supported by major health infrastructure projects across the province. These include the Weyburn Hospital, Saskatoon Urgent Care Centre, Prince Albert Victoria Hospital and additional acute care beds in Saskatoon. Our government will continue working to ensure residents receive the right care, in the right place, at the right time.

We are also expanding support for people facing addiction. Treatment capacity will reach 1,250 spaces, including 250 additional spaces beyond previous commitments. These facilities will provide treatment, counselling and connections to community services to support recovery.

Beyond health care, keeping communities safe remains essential. Our government is investing in frontline policing and rural and municipal police services. New legislation will strengthen critical infrastructure protections, combat human trafficking, address deceptive uses of artificial intelligence and increase impaired-driving penalties. These measures aim to improve safety in homes and neighbourhoods across Saskatchewan.

Agriculture continues to play a vital role in our provincial economy. Our government is enhancing AgriStability, reviewing the Saskatchewan Farm Security Act and investing in agricultural research. These efforts support producers, protect farmland and help prepare the sector for future challenges.

Strong communities also depend on affordable opportunities for families to participate in local activities. Our government doubled the Community Rink Affordability Grant from $2,500 to $5,000 per ice surface to help cover operating costs and equipment. The Active Families Benefit also doubled to $300 per child and $400 per child with a disability. The household income eligibility threshold increased from $60,000 to $120,000, helping more families access sports and recreational activities.

Looking ahead, our government will focus on what we can control to keep Saskatchewan strong and steady amid global uncertainty. We look forward to the important work ahead this session. If you have any questions, please contact my office using the contact information provided above.

THE LAST CASUALTY

A 25-year-old soldier from Saskatchewan was killed in action two minutes before WWI ended

By TERRY PUGH
tpugh@ccgazette.ca

All through the final weeks of October and into the beginning of November, 1918, rumours were flying up and down the Allied lines in France and Belgium that the Great War was nearing an end.

But thousands of battle-weary, cynical young soldiers had heard similar rumblings for years. Most simply dismissed the rumours as wishful thinking. Their focus was on surviving another day and doing what they had been trained to do.

Even when an official order was relayed to the Canadian Corps in the early morning hours of November 11 that they were to lay low till 11 a.m., when the armistice would take effect, not every soldier knew about it.

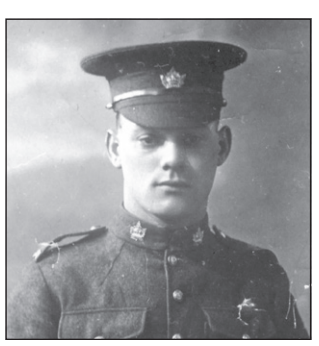

That's likely one reason why, during the late morning of November 11, 1918, Private George Lawrence Price, Private Art Goodmurphy, and two other members of the 28th Canadian Infantry Battalion were carrying out a reconnaissance mission in the small Belgian village of Ville-sur-Haine.

The small contingent of Canadians from the Saskatchewan battalion were searching a house from which a German machine gun had been firing just moments before. They rushed the building through the front door, only to find the German gun crew had escaped through the back door. The Canadians then moved on to the next house, but once again they found no enemy soldiers.

As Price and Goodmurphy stepped back into the street, a single shot from a German sniper's rifle rang out.

Price was hit in the chest, and he slumped into Goodmurphy's arms. He was dragged back into a house where he was attended to by the occupants, the Lenoir family, as well as a young Belgian girl named Alice Grotte, who witnessed the shot and heroically risked her life by dashing across the street to come to his aid.

Despite their efforts, Price died at 10:58 a.m., just two minutes before the 'cease fire' order took effect. He was the last British Commonwealth soldier to die in World War I.

George Lawrence Price

But the Belgian people have not forgotten him, and nor has the province he called home.

There are two memorial plaques dedicated to his memory: one is in the Belgian town where he met his fate, and the other is in a quiet, shady corner of Moose Jaw's historic Crescent Park.

George Price was born on December 15, 1892 in King's County, Nova Scotia. When he was about 21 years old, in 1914, he left his home in the Maritimes and moved west in search of employment and opportunity. He worked as a farm labourer and eventually settled in Moose Jaw. As the war dragged on and the need for more recruits increased, Price answered the call. He was one of about 42,000 young men from Saskatchewan who served in the armed forces during the First World War.

He enlisted in the 210th Infantry Battalion in Moose Jaw on October 15, 1917, and completed his basic training in Regina. In December 1917, he was enrolled with the 1st Saskatchewan Depot Battalion. He was transferred to the 15th Canadian Reserve Battalion on February 6, 1918, and then transferred to the 28th Canadian Infantry Battalion on May 1, 1918. He arrived in Etaples, France, on May 2, 1918, and finally arrived at the front lines on June 1, 1918.

A few months and many bloody battles later, Price was among the Canadian troops who suffered a serious poison gas attack in the Canal-du-Nord area. He was sent to the 1st Canadian Casualty Collection Station for initial treatment and subsequently moved to the 26th General Hospital in Etaples, France. He was discharged and returned to his unit on September 26, 1918.

Six and a half weeks later, he was the last of more than 61,000 Canadian soldiers to be killed in action during the First World War. (The total number of Canadian troops killed in World War I, including those who died of wounds after the war ended, is estimated to be between 65,000 and 66,000.)

Price was buried at the St. Symphorien Military Cemetery in Belgium near the City of Mons. He was posthumously awarded the British War Medal and the Victory Medal. A plaque dedicated to his memory was unveiled in Ville-sur-Haine on the 50th anniversary of his death in November, 1968 by the few remaining survivors of the 28th Canadian Infantry Battalion.

On November 11, 1991, the town of Ville-sur-Haine officially named a bridge across the Canal-du-Centre as the George Price Footbridge. On April 24, 2015, the local school in Ville-sur-Haine was renamed École George Price.

NOVEMBER 11 Remembrance DAY

Every day Remembrance Day
They died.
Those that came back faced death of a different kind.
Loss of the innocence of youth.
The horrors that won't leave their mind.
Wearing a poppy, attending a memorial service, is a very small price to pay.
Let's remember our veterans, of whom my Dad was one, each and every day.
Make every day Remembrance Day.

Poem by Martensville resident Wanda Brown. "My Dad, Howard Nelson, was a Medic during the Second World War. He returned, thankfully, got married and had five children. My parents are gone now, but we siblings can't forget the sacrifice. We are so grateful."

In Flanders Fields

By John McCrae

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie,
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Korean War veteran inspired youth

By TERRY PUGH

This year's Remembrance Day service in Duck Lake will pay tribute to a long-time leader of the local Royal Canadian Legion branch who made a lasting mark on his community, his province and the country as a whole.

Claude Petit was a veteran of the Korean War, a five-time Canadian Army heavyweight boxing champion (1958-1963) and the only Canadian to win the British Army Heavyweight Boxing Championship (1964). He passed away at the age of 90 on August 11, 2026.

Petit was born October 31, 1935 and joined the Canadian Army at the age of 16 . He was a member of the famed Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry (PPCLI).

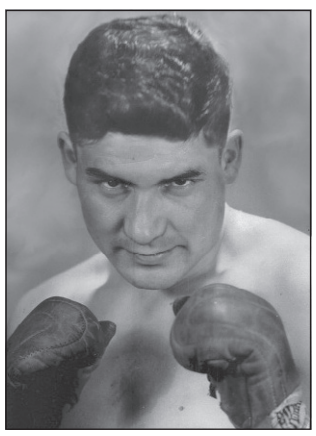

He turned 17 while travelling to Korea on a troop ship, according to his long-time friend and fellow Korean War vet, Vince Courtney.

n a social media post shortly after Petit's passing, Courtney wrote:

"We fought side by side in 1952 in the Second Battle of the Hook, where our very small company lost more than 12 soldiers and had as many wounded in the counter-attack and defence of the position.

"Claude was one of the wounded, just a few weeks after his arrival in Korea and his 17th birthday at sea in the middle of the Pacific Ocean. After surgery he was back in our company and spent Christmas Day on the front lines - at 17."

When the Korean conflict ended, Petit stayed in the military, serving in the Canadian Airborne Brigade, completing 13 years of service before leaving the army to open and operate a sporting goods business in his home town of Duck Lake.

Claude Petit during his boxing prime Petit played an integral role in creating a monument to Aboriginal veterans in Ottawa, as well as an Aboriginal Veterans Millennium Medal.

Over the years, his many accomplishments included induction into the Saskatchewan Sports Hall of Fame. He was awarded the Order of Canada in 1997 and the Saskatchewan Order of Merit in 2002.

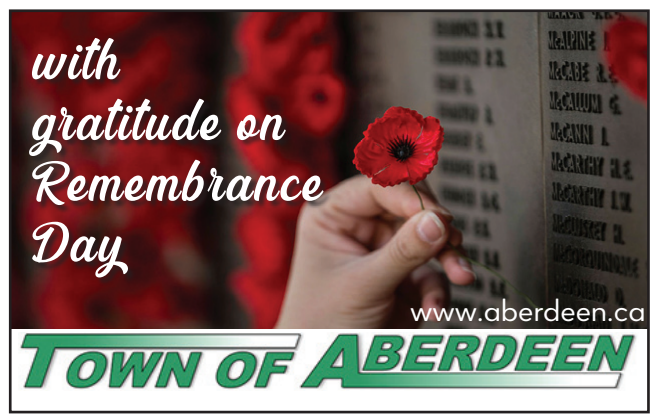

In addition to his involvement with the Duck Lake Legion branch, Petit devoted a tremendous amount of time and energy encouraging youth to participate in sports of all kinds, particularly boxing and hockey.

He coached Team Canada at international boxing competitions in Denmark (1989) and France (1990). In 1993, he worked as a top-level official at the first North American Indigenous Games held in Saskatchewan, hosted in Prince Albert. He also founded the Western Canadian Native Minor Hockey Championships.

Wolverines stretch winning streak to six games

By KEVIN BERGER

kberger@ccgazette.ca

The Warman Wolverines extended their winning streak to six games this weekend with a 7-2 victory over the La Ronge Ice Wolves on Saturday, October 31.

The local Junior 'A' hockey team had begun their winning streak on Saturday, October 10 with a 4-3 overtime victory over Nipawin.

They extended the streak further with a 4-3 shootout victory against the Melville Millionaires on October 16 and a pair of lopsided victories over the Battlefords North Stars on October 17 and October 20.

They also defeated the La Ronge Ice Wolves 6-5 in an October 24 away game.

During the Halloween match-up at the Warman Home Centre Communiplex, the two teams seemed on an even keel in the first period, with both the Wolverines and Ice Wolves notching two goals each.

Both of Warman's goals were scored by Sawyer Scheidt, assisted by Owen Parks and Jaggar John on the first goal and Jaggar and Ben Morton on the second goal.

From there, however, the Wolverines ran up the score, scoring three goals in the second period and two more in the third.

Morton scored one power play and one regular goal, while Kanyan Unger, Trey Markus and Peyton Allard contributed Warman's remaining goals.

Assisting the goal-scorers in the second and third periods were Ashton Lee (three times), Benett Leibel (twice), Braden Hordichuk, Markus, Allard and Kayden Yeaman.

The Wolverines also played an away game on Tuesday, November 3 against the Melville Millionaires. Results are not available due to publication deadlines.

Warman next travels to Flin Flon for a pair of away games this Friday and Saturday, November 6-7.

Clavet advances to semi-final

The Clavet Cougars punched their ticket to the SHSAA 2A 6-a-side high school football provincial semi-final last weekend with a 52-8 win over the visiting Rosthern Longhorns in quarter-final playoff action. The Cougars will take on the host Wynyard Bears in what promises to be a tough battle on Saturday, November 7.

The winner of that game will advance to the provincial championship final against either the Watrous Warriors or the Shellbrook Aardvarks on Saturday, November 14. If the Cougars lose in the semi-final, they can still compete for the provincial bronze medal against the loser of the other semi-final match-up. The bronze medal game is also slated for November 14.

The Cougars have so far not lost a game all season, racking up six consecutive victories during the regular season against their Conference 2 opponents. The Cougars have won the provincial championship nine times since 2007, most recently in 2024.

The Delisle Rebels, meanwhile, reached the end of their playoff road last weekend, losing 43-22 to the host Tisdale Tornadoes in the SHSAA 4A 9-a-side football quarter final playoff matchup.

The new bylaw is intended to provide clear, consistent, and enforceable regulations for land use and development in the Town of Hague.

The proposed Fee Bylaw is being established to formalize development charges and provide for cost-recovery of the review and application of eligible items.

Inspection of Bylaw: Any person may inspect the proposed bylaws and the zoning map at the Town Office, 206 Main Street, Hague, SK, between 8:30 a.m. to 12:00pm and 1:00pm to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday, excluding statutory holidays. Copies may be obtained from the Town Office at cost.

Public Hearing: Council will hold a public hearing on December 8th, 2026, at 6:30 p.m. in Council Chambers at the Town Office, 206 Main Street, Hague, SK, to hear any person or group that wishes to comment on the proposed bylaws.
